PERRY'S

Black never holds second olace in popular favor—our Black Goods especially.

There is character to them refinement-fashion.

We never fail to have as full an assortment as the creation of new effects will admit. Perhaps the collection is larger this season than it has ever been. Perhaps it is larger than you will find anywhere else. Well it might be-for Black is very much in demand-and so nearly everybody wants a "cut" of ours.

Crepon is the leader. There are almost a hundred varieties--all new-all exclusive.

If you judge the qualities right you will decide the prices are remarkably low. That is one of the attractions here-this selling the best cheapest.

Opening Display Spring & Summer Clothing For Girls and Young Ladies.

We shall make our first showing of Ready-to-wear Garments for girls from 4 to 18 years tomorrow, and continue same the following days of the week.

It is the universal opinion of those who know that each season the display of made-up garments is handsomer and more artistic than the previous one. This season has a double advantage. Printed fabrics of all kinds are made in prettier effects than ever before-the variety is vastly ahead of the heretofore, and when these beautiful fabrics are combined with the ideas of the best tailors and dressmakers of today, the outcome beggars description. Such, indeed, is the display of Ready-towear Garments for girls that we have prepared. Every garment has a new, distinctive feature about it-new fabrics, new patterns, new styles, new cuts, new shapes and new ideas pervade the entire display.

In early spring garments we show some very unique ideas in Twopiece Wool Dresses for girls from 4 to 12 years-very full skirts and novel effects in Eton and other jackets, to be worn with blouses and waists. Of these we have a very choice assortment.

For Young Ladies 12 to 18 years there are some beautiful and very effective styles in Jacket Suits-the skirts are made very full, five and six yards around, with a variety of entirely new shapes in the Jackets and

In the Washable Fabrics the display is far in advance of any past season. Exquisite new designs in Organdies, Gauzes, Jaconets, Persian Silks, Lappets, etc., made in the most charming and effective styles, particularly adaptable for girls-full and fluffy, with a profusion of dainty lace, embroidery and ribbon trimmings, and including high neck and low neck styles in Guimpe Dresses and Dresses for Party Wear, Dresses for School Wear, Play Dresses, Traveling Dresses, Outing Dresses, etc.

liam Doyle, Rohl Doyle, Harry Ellis and The paymasters' clerks of the army have Meyers. Miss Annie Henderson attended petitioned the paymaster general to urge her sister as maid of honor, gowned in upon the appropriate committees of gray wool, with a pretty bodice of pink gress the justice for increased pay. In the chiffon. Miss Myrtle Dexter, Miss Gerpetition it is set forth that the duties of the trude Fanchot and Miss Mamie Clear were clerks are greatly increased by the recent the bridesmaids. They wore stylish cloth new order for payments to the army, endresses, one bronze, one fawn-color and tailing the writing of hundreds of checks, one in green. The first-named carried a and the counting and placing of currency large bouquet of pink carnations, tied with large bouquet of plnk carnations, tied with long pink streamers, the ends of which were held by the other bridesmaids, who walked behind her. The bride, who came in church with her father, wore dark blue cloth, with a jacket bodice of blue velvet and a vest of light yellow brocade. Her hat was of blue velvet, trimmed with plumes. Mrs. Henderson wore black satin and lace. Mr. and Mrs. Doyle left for a northern wedding trip, and will reside in Philadelphia. The bride received numbers of beautiful presents. Saturday evening a in envelopes addressed to the individual soldier. It is also called to attention that mile age to clerks is prohibited by reason of the new order.

The clerks, continuing, explain that they do not have advantages for promotion, such as are enjoyed by clerks in the classified as are enjoyed by clerks in the classified service, nor have they, as clerks, the right to petition except through superior officers. The duties performed, they say, are peculiarly different from those of other clerks, as constant care and accuracy is exacted by the paymaster, owing to the disbursement of public funds. The petition further declares that the payments made by the pay department of the army are annually increasing, and consequently the volume of work is correspondingly greater.
